THINGS TO KNOW

As the year comes to a close, we are wishing all of our families a wonderful winter break. We are excited about all the educational gains your child had made this year so far!

Holiday baking and cooking is a great way for your child to practice self-help skills and strengthen their small and large motor skills.

In December, we focus on safe sleep. Getting enough sleep helps children to focus at school and allows them to feel rested and prepared to learn. Nighttime routines can help make the process of putting your child to bed easier.

Ideas to Build Your Own Bedtime Routine

- Turn off screens.
- Take a bath.
- Brush our teeth.
- Take a bathroom break.
- Read stories.
- Set a regular bedtime.

Amount of sleep your child needs each day, including their naps:

- Infants (0-12 months) = 14-15 hours
- Toddler (1-3 years) = 12-14 hours
- Preschoolers (3-5 years) = 11-13 hours

DUAL LANGUAGE

December is a wonderful time to share your home language and holiday traditions with your child! Kids who grow up with two languages can build stronger memory and problem-solving skills.

Try this: play 'I Spy' with holiday items around the house using words in your language, like 'I spy something red' (Veo algo rojo). It's a fun way to practice words together.

Here's a riddle: What has many words but never speaks? (Answer: A book!)

NUTRITION

Picky eating is common. At times, your child may not eat much and this is normal. Children ages 2-5 only gain an average of 4-5 pounds per year. This means they need less calories to maintain their growth, and will be less hungry.

- Try to offer healthy meals and snacks every 2-3 hours (no snacks between these times)
- Offer new foods with familiar foods.
- Remember it can take several introductions before they might accept a new food.
